PREFACE.

It is with a feeling of relief I close this work which has extended through several years. No one can know the anxiety caused by the desire to obtain a full and correct record, or the discouragement and vexation by the delays, indifference and incomplete records of some, the failure of others to respond and the extra work attending its accomplishment, mostly outside of business hours, but those who have passed through the trials attending such a work. And had I known this I should not have commenced, and assuredly not with the loss I expect.

Although mentally and physically relieved I am not satisfied with the result, knowing there are so many of whom I was unable to obtain any trace; or to fully establish the connection of others with this line, who without doubt belonged to it, and the incomplete records given by those living, although their attention was called to it several times. It is not conclusive that there is no further record of one than that given because it does not appear, for I have learned after giving the children recorded as born in one place, that others were born elsewhere, (notably of those who moved to New Hampshire, prior to 1800) and some would name only themselves when giving the children of their parents, and I would learn of others later. An (?) is placed after the names of those living who did not respond, to designate that the data was obtained from other sources, and may not be correct and full.

"Do you not find the Sargents superior to other people?" I was asked by a lady who married one of the best (?) of our line. Although not finding any of the line notoriously bad, I have found all classes, and that human nature was about alike without regard to name, politics or ism. And as I recalled the trouble and expense of getting from others the records of some who did not respond, and I became acquainted with their attainments, I was not prepared to answer her question in the affirmative. But as I called to mind the large list of those I have met and corresponded with and the great pleasure I have derived from these associations, I should say at once they were "superior." I shall always hold the latter in grateful memory, and have placed a dagger (†) after the names of those whose interest led them to give me information beyond their own near kindred. To these and those who responded so promptly and with full records, I extend my heartiest thanks, knowing they are courteous and obliging and held their parents and kindred in loving veneration, and wished to give them a perpetuated record, not for their own gratification alone, but for the pleasure and benefit it would give to others. The idea of interest or non-interest in the matter being a portrayal of any trait of character may not appear probable to some, but I have proven it otherwise, and have the opinion of others to confirm it.

Our nationality may have had something to do with our indifference, for not until within a few years have we given much attention to the part our ancestors took in the settlement of our country and its wars for independence and right. We have been a progressive people, looking forward, not backward, taking a person for himself, not asking much about his ancestry. But this is changing, most believing as a rule, "Blood will tell," and I find but few instances of neglect or indifference in the progressive class. "Self-made men" have respected and taken just pride in their ancestors.

As to the correctness of this record there are no doubt many mistakes, but much data that will seem wrong to some, will be right to others, as several dates and records have been given me of one person, by different ones in the same family, and the same persons have given me different data of others and of themselves. I have used those that appeared the most authentic. Public records do not always agree with family records, and it is curious how the public learns of a birth and records it before it happens (?) as is often claimed by a person or family.

But little of my authority is given owing to its magnitude, as data of a person was often obtained from so many sources. It has been gathered from individuals, family, public, and church records, histories, wills, papers, genealogies, gravestones and a record commenced by 175 Ezekiel, and continued byhis son, 559 Darius, until the death of the latter in 1859. This latter record included many of the descendants of 2 Thomas to the fifth generation, and some of those of 2 William to the fourth generation. By the courtesy of the widow and daughter of 563

Darius, I had free access to this record and without this I could not have given as much of the early data, and I wish them to have full credit.

As to the beneficial results of the work I feel fully assured, from the vast number of commendations I have received; the answers it has given to many inquiries; the placing on record information otherwise lost or inaccessible; imparting information in relation to the ancestors of many, and correcting erroneous traditions of others. And whatever may be the result I can only say in conclusion as in my previous work, "It is the hope and desire of the writer that this may introduce those of kin and bring them into closer relationship, and prove beneficial and instructive to this and future generations." To all of whom this work is dedicated by

PUBLISHERS' NOTE.

The same year that witnessed the completion of Mr. Sargent's manuscript for this book also records his death, which occurred on June 24. As the book was more than half completed at this time it seemed advisable to finish the work and thus perpetuate the records of a family in which the author had taken such a deep interest. Indeed up to the very day that he died his mind was upon this work, and had his life been spared it would have been more complete than it now is. In the book are the records of about 5300 different people, which represents years of patient labor on behalf of the compiler. It is only to be regretted that he did not live to see the work completed and receive the congratulations of every Sargent, wherever he may be, upon the success of his arduous task. It was the crowning effort of his life and to it he literally sacrificed his life.

The Name and Its Heraldry.

All names up to about the ninth century were what we call christian or given names, and when surnames were adopted, many of the early christian names were taken; others were changed and new surnames created. And as all surnames were derived from something existing, persons naturally desire to know the origin of their own.

Perhaps of the derivatives claimed for the name Sargent, one of the most plausible is that it was derived from the Latin words "serjens," or "serviens." But when the taking and changing of christian names to surnames is considered and it is found that there had been a name in use for centuries B. C. and found in England in connection with the records and names of Sargents of the same family, spelt nearer like Sargent than any other, would it not be more natural to believe it was derived from that name? I give the following names of which I have a record, that show the various ways of its spelling, and less deviation from the first (the one to which I referred) to the present manner of spelling than almost any other. The first was found in Babylon, and the first three in Assyria and are the first ones found. The others are found in Europe and America, and given alphabetically, except the two last, which are now mostly in use, the last one almost universal.

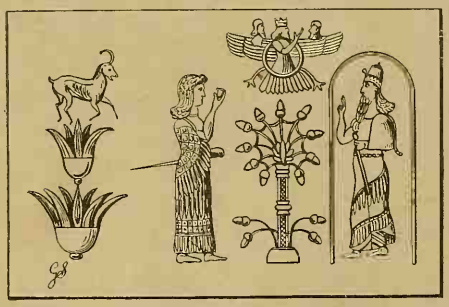
Sargentt,	Sergante,	Serjant,	Sargent,

I find that Sargon was King of Babylon over 4000 years B. C. and that the name is found among those without rank previous to the noted historical record given it 722 years B. C., when the second Sargon, Sargian or Sargina, proclaimed himself King of Assyria, and it is claimed on very creditable authority that the name is found with but slight change, in Persia, Gaul, Holland and the Netherlands. Sargan is found at Boston, Lincolnshire, and Sargen at Norton, Bury, St. Edmunds, Suffolk, England, in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

The name has been quite common in England since about the fourteenth century, and many of this name have held prominent positions. The name Sargon is said to signify "The firm" or "well-established king." Rawlinson, Layard and others in their historical works give a very full and interesting account of the warfare, architecture, art, international improvements, etc., of the 2d Sargon and those of his descendants who succeeded him.

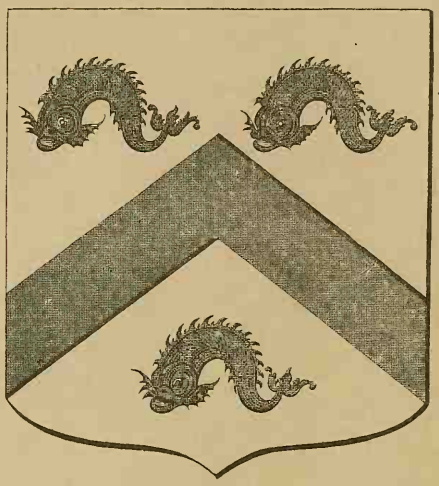
In presenting the subject of heraldry I do so as a matter of interest to Sargents generally without claiming to trace the lineage of William, whose descendants are given in this work back to those having a coat-of-arms in England. And I have been unable to learn of an emigrant of this name from England to America whose lineage has been traced back to a family known to have a coat-of-arms prior to his immigration, but one has been found in the family of a nephew of an emigrant, about a century after his immigration.



The first illustration given is the signet supposed to have been that of the son of the second Sargon, and who succeeded his father. It is described by Layard in his work, "Nineveh and Babylon," as follows:

"On one cylinder of translucent green feldspar, called amazon stone, the King is standing in an arched frame. He holds in one hand the sacrificial mace, and raising the other in the act of adoration before the winged figure in a circle, represented as a triard with three heads. In front of the King is an Eunuch, and the sacred tree, whose flowers are, in this instance, in the form of an acorn. A mountain goat standing upon a flower resembling the lotus, occupies the rest of the cylinder." All these are emblems representing the belief of the time and are fully explained in the work mentioned.

There appears to have been two styles of coat-of-arms in the possession of Sargents in England. The ones noted at "Dynton, Burkes," and "Northumberland," were, Gules, a bend nebulæ, argent, between two dolphins embowed. Those of "Staffordshire," "Holsted, Kent," "Michael Dean, Gloucester," Seargeant, "Gloucester," "Waldridge, Burks," and "Colis, Stafford," were almost identical of the one given herein, copied from "Kent's Elements of Heraldry." Argent, a Chevron between three dolphins naiant embowed, sable that of Serjeant, Staffordshire. The coat-of-arms of Peter Sargent, who came to Boston, Mass., in 1669, was like those last named except the dolphins were haurient, in place of naiant embowed. I was unable to learn of the dates of but two prior to 1640, and it was not until about this date or later that there appears to have been any record or regulation in England as to their bestowal or the way persons became possessed of them, but many ways are named. Some writers claim that at first they were bestowed on warriors only, and for some heroic act or deed of valor.



As to the significance of this coat-of-arms, as the dolphin was considered a "fish of great swiftness," appertaining to the water, it is suggestive that it was bestowed for some meritorious naval exploit.

Ancestors in the United States.

Finding the facts in relation to the above so little understood, I conclude to give in this work some of the information obtained. In response to my request of thousands of Sargents for their ancestry and record, I found but a small per cent of them could give their lineal descent and record for more than two or three generations. And not half of those who claimed to trace back further gave a correct line, and most would say of the one preceding the last they had given a record of that "he was one of two" or "three brothers who came from England, Ireland, Scotland" or "Wales." It is almost certain that a lineage traced back to about 1750, and its progenitor's origin is not positively known, that he was a descendant of some of the eight ancestors of the first lines named herein. I have found this to be the case in many instances.

The following are some of those of whom I have found a record in America, prior to 1700, most of whom have left a large posterity. There was William at Ipswich, Mass., in 1633, whose record and that of his descendants I give in this work. William at Charlestown, in 1638, of whose record and that of his descendants Aaron Sargent of Somerville, has issued a book. Jonathan at Branford, Conn., in 1646, who had sons Jonathan, Thomas and John, probably born in England. The oldest one Jonathan, and the only one by which the name was continued, moved to New Jersey, and was the ancestor of Rev. John at Stockbridge, Mass., some of those in Pennsylvania, and no doubt of Jeremiah at Parksburg, Va., prior to 1780, who had sons, John, Henry E., A. C. and William. William at Gloucester, Mass., in 1649, who had sons John b. 1653, Andrew b. 1655, William b. 1658, Samuel b. 1662, Nathan b. 1671, and Joseph b. 1675, John at the Isles of Shoals, in 1658, who had children, Edward b. 1661, Benjamin b. 1673, and Patience b. 1675; the eldest Edward having sons Edward b. 1684, Nathaniel b. 1687, Elisha b. 1695, and Ichabod b. 1701. I believe that Jonathan at York, Me., in 1740, was of this line and the Nathaniel above was the Dr. Nathaniel at Hampton, N. H., in 1705. William 2d at Gloucester, Mass., before 1678, who had sons Andrew b. 1683, Daniel b. 1686, Jordon b. 1688, Epes b. 1690, Fitz William b. 1704. From this branch is Paul Dudley the ancestor of Epes the author. Diggory § at Boston, 1675, and then at Worcester, Mass., where he was killed by the Indians about 1703, and his family taken to Canada. His son Daniel lived and died there; his son Thomas resided in Boston, Mass., in 1715; and his son John, who was killed at Fort Dummer by the Indians, had sons Daniel, John, Thomas and Rufus, and the progenitor of what is known as the Brattleboro, Vt., branch. There was a Stephen whose "estate was taken in 1649," at Boston, a Thomas who shipped from London in 1635, aged 23 years, a Richard in Virginia, in 1623, aged 36 years, of whom I have no further knowledge. There was a Peter at Boston in 1669, an officer and having a coat-of-arms, but he left no descendant. Later than 1725 there was James and Daniel at Boston, record of one of them is in the New England Historical Genealogical Society of Boston. There was a James at Frederick County, Md., in 1775, who had sons William, Snowdon, Richard, James, John, Elijah and five daughters. There was a William who d. at Newbury, N. H., in 1845, aged about 90 years who had sons William F., b. 1781, Asa b. 1788, Isaac F. b. 1789, Amos and three daughters, born in Hillsboro and vicinity and left a large posterity in New England, who no doubt are from one of the lines previously named. There was a Timothy (?) C. at Williamstown, Mass., who had sons, Timothy, Enoch, Ephraim, Junia, Ira and five daughters, of whom it is claimed he was born in 1751 "on the voyage from England," also that "he was born on ship-board in Newburyport harbor." It is quite possible judging from the disagreements of his descendants, the place of birth and similarity of names, he was of the Amesbury line. Also that John at Loudon, N. H., who signed the association test of the revolutionary war and m. Mar. 21, 1770, Mehitable Smith, and had sons John b. 1770, and Isaac Smith b. 1772, was of this line.

EXPLANATIONS.

Only those of the name of Sargent are numbered or their generation given, the number at the left, and generation at the right of the given name. The surname Sargent is not used but once at the head of a family record and that with the 1st William. Those having an "s." after the date of their birth, have a further record and their name and number is found again at the head of their own family record. Sons not known to be married and daughters are not numbered but referred to under the number of their father.

A place with the state omitted, is of the state last given, and a place once used in the same record is afterward designated by its initial; but in case of two places of the same initials, the initial refers to the place last given. When the name of a place has been changed, all data is given as of the present name; and data of a place taken from another is given under its original name up to the time of the division. Data in a place having no official record, and located in a township or city where such official record would naturally be found, is usually given as of the latter.

SARGENT RECORD.

I WILLIAM SARGENT[1].

Since my extensive research in England, which included the examination of probate, church, naval, judicial and other records by genealogists and others; advertising in the leading daily and Episcopalian papers of London, offering a reward for information, I failed to substantiate the statements I copied in my former work, therefore I feel it incumbent on me to give the following explanation:

The quotations that William, "was born in London in 1602," that his father Richard, "was a barrister at law," and his mother, "a daughter of Sir Richard Saltonstall," I could not substantiate and found much to disprove the last two. I believe that a part of these statements I quoted from the persons making them, were conclusions drawn from a record furnished them about fifty years ago, of a "Richard Sargent, a justice, who died at Dinton, England, in 1668, who had a son William." But the Dinton Parish records show that the children of William the son of Richard, were baptised there from 1630, to 1634, and that Richard died aged 79. He therefore would have been but thirteen years old when our ancestor William was born, if born in 1602. That William "was appointed midshipman in the navy," I found no record. That William "sailed with Captain John Smith, in 1614, to Jamestown, Virginia, stopping at Agawam, Massachusetts, en route," may be true as to his being with Captain Smith at Agawam, as he settled there afterwards. But that he went to Virginia, as that writer alleges, is questioned, as history does not give Capt. Smith as being in Virginia later than 1609. William was a seaman in his younger years as he is designated as a "seaman" or "mariner" in his will and other documents, but he no doubt later in life followed other occupations with it.

That his father Richard held a position in the "Royal Navy," another tradition advanced by others, is not confirmed, so far as I can learn, by the navy records. As to William being born in London, and in 1602, it may be claimed that it has been a tradition so long it must be true, but I have proven so many traditions untrue, I am skeptical in this matter. As the birth of William of Malden, whose record was written by Aaron Sargent of Somerville, Mass., was known to have been in 1602, and the two Williams lived so near each other in Massachusetts, their records of birth might have got "mixed up." Then I have a letter from a person in England stating that he was born in 1598, but cannot learn as there is any authority for it. The nearest record to the one claimed in 1602, I have been able to find in England, of a William born to a Richard, is the following from the Abby church, Bath:

"Marriages. 1602, November, Richard Sargent, and Katherine Steevenes the 22 day. Ano Dom., 1630, Jening Walters and Joane Sergeant, were married April 15." "Baptisms. Elizabeth the daughter of Richard Sargeant, 28 day 1603, October. 1606 June, William the Sonne of Richard Sargeant the 28th. March 1609, Joane the daughter of Richard Sargent was baptized the 26th."

As there is no further record of the father or son found there, they may have gone to London and William shipped from there. At first I was not inclined to believe this William was our ancestor or from this part of England, for the following reasons: There were many Sargents, and some whose given names were Richard, in Cambridge and Suffolk counties, England, and as John Winthrop and some of the others who settled at Agawam, Mass., and changed its name to Ipswich, were from Ipswich, Suffolk county, and vicinity, England, I was inclined to believe William was from there. But since learning that the father of William's first wife, "Quartermaster John Perkins," was at Agawam in August, 1631, in a short time after arriving in America, and that he came from near Bath, England, that if William was from there and with Capt. Smith in 1614, when the latter landed at Agawam and wrote up its beauties and advantages, William may have returned and induced John Perkins and others to emigrate.

The first recorded record I found of William is in the General Court records of Massachusetts Colony in April, 1633, by an act by said court protecting certain grantees of land then at Agawam, now Ipswich, Mass., in their rights, and "Willm Srjeant" was one of them. The next record is that of his oath of allegiance and fidelity in 1639, and his name is recorded "Willi: Sergent," but neither is as he spelt it. It is shown by records and deeds that he was later one of the first settlers at Wessacucon, now Newbury, in 1635; at Winnacumet, now Hampton, N. H., in 1638; at South Merrimac, now Salisbury, Mass., in 1639, and that "Wm. Sargent, townsman and commoner of Salisbury, tax rate Dec. 25, 1650, 7s. 4d." He was next located at Salisbury New Town, now Amesbury and Merrimac, in 1655, where he resided until his death in 1675. The statement in the town history of Amesbury, "that William married for his first wife Judith, a sister of his second wife, Elizabeth Perkins," the author informs me he made on information of another, and had no other authority. The genealogy of the John Perkins's family gives no daughter Judith, and that Elizabeth was born in 1618, at Newent, Gloucestershire, England, and therefore old enough by 1634 to have been the mother of Mary, the eldest child of William, who married Philip Challis, and Mary old enough to be a mother in 1653, when her first child was born. This therefore refutes the marriage of William to Judith, and also the idea that Elizabeth was too young to have been the mother of the eldest children of William. The date of their marriage was probably about 1633, as she came to America with her parents in the ship Lion in the spring of 1631, and they were both at Agawam prior to 1633. I found no date of her death, but it was before Sept. 18, 1670, for he married on that date Joanna Rowell, who survived him and married Richard Currier of Amesbury.

Owing to a lack and contradiction of records, there is an uncertainty as to William's children, their order, dates of birth and death. Where there are two records which conflict, I have used the Salisbury, if that is one of the two. There is a record of "Mary b. June 17, 1647," and no record of her death, and it is not probable a second child was named Mary after the one who married Mr. Challis, the one named in William's will. So I am convinced it should have been "Lydia," of whom I find no record of birth, but "died in 1661," and have given the former under the latter name. The "Elizabeth" given as the "wife of William died 1641," must have been the daughter "Elizabeth" who "died July 14, 1641." He was one of the "Prudential" men in Amesbury in 1667; he resided in the part of the town known as the "West Parish," and built a house near the church and academy. He died in March, 1675, and was buried in the cemetery at the "Ferry." His will is as follows, and probated at Salem, Mass., in 1675.

"In the name of God Amen. the 24 day of March $16\frac{71}{72}$ I William Sargent of y^{e} town of Emefbury in y^{e} County of Norfolk Maffachufettf in Newengland Seaman being in pritty good health of body & of found & pfect memorie (praise bee given to god for y^{e} same) & knowing y^{e} uncertainty of thif life on earth & being Defirouf to fettle thingf in order doe make thif my laft will & Teftam^{t} in manner & form That if to fay

His will was pro. at Exeter, 1798, and names his wife, Elizabeth, and "Samuel Sargent, son of Challis Sargent, which we took."

304 i. Samuel[6], (adopted) b. March 2, 1774. s.

Before finding the above clause in the will and having the statement of a person in 1843 that 304 was the son of 108, I gave him and his descendants a place in the work, notwithstanding the "traditional" claim in Windham history that he was the son of Challis. So I let it stand, as Challis was from Amesbury, and there were so many of this line and connection of 108 Samuel from there and some intermarriages with those of the surname Challis, I have no question of the connection and I let the record remain.

I am of the opinion that Challis was the son of 110 William, and named for his mother's family. W. history gives the wife of Challis as Jennie Buswell; c. I. Samuel[6]. II. Simeon[6], d. III. Charles[6], m. Eleanor Clark; c. Mary[7]; Simeon[7]; Hiram[7]; Eliza[7]; Hannah[7]; Charles[7]. IV. Moses[6], b. 1781, m. Betsey Marrow; c. He spent his early years upon his father's farm in Union Village, Vt. Here he earned quite a reputation for strength and ability to do as much work as his companions. Sleek steers, heifers and lambs gave proof of his good care and liking for all kinds of animals. At twelve years of age he became a chum, at Thetford Academy, with Eugene Ladd, now Lieutenant in the U. S. army. He continued at the Academy four years, then took a year at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H., and entered Dartmouth College from which he was graduated in 1884. Twice during the course he taught school to aid in defraying expenses. He was a good student, faithful in college work, was prominent in athletics, a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, and a Phi Beta Kappa man. Upon graduating he accepted a position at the academy in Bradford, Vt., going from there to Newport, Vt., then to Franklin Falls, N. H., and Providence, R. I., and is now principal in the

ERRATA.

On page 128, 598 Samuel should read 578 Samuel.
On page 138, William son of 636 Robert M. should read 1097 William.
On page 221, 1472 Lewis W. should read 1572 Lewis W.
On page 222, 1277 Sylvanus should read 1577 Sylvanus.
Complete record of 1489 Solon and 1491 Ransom could not be found.
Other errors that may appear are in several instances explained by the fact that the compiler's death prevented the revision of copy as he had intended.

INDEX.

Comprising the names of Sargents, variously spelled, together with those of connected families by intermarriage. Names in parenthesis under the name Sargent are those who have married into the Sargent family. Wherever (S) occurs under names other than Sargent it indicates that the female married into other families. The figures refer to the family number.
